Climate Change Could Deplete Fish Stocks Without Better Data, International Agreements, Researchers Say

SEAFOODNEWS.COM [The Toronto Star] by Perrin Grauer - May 01, 2018

VANCOUVER—Global fish stocks are in real danger without fast action from governments to better manage fisheries suffering from the effects of climate change, researchers and experts say.

William Cheung, an associate professor with the University of British Columbia's Institute for the Oceans and Fisheries, said the way data is used to figure out safe guidelines for fisheries could quickly be rendered useless by the effects of a warming planet.

"Climate change is actually changing the baseline that fisheries management measures are working on," Cheung said. "So it's likely those (measures) that are working now ... they ...

Pricing for 20-30 Count Scallops Upside Down, as U-10 and 10-20 Prices Fall Lower

SEAFOODNEWS.COM [SeafoodNews] by John Sackton - May 10, 2018

Scallops are priced by size with U-10 and 10-20 count scallops usually selling at a premium over smaller 20-30 count sizes.

Currently that relationship is upside down. For all natural scallops and dry scallops, 10-20's are now priced lower than 20-30 count.

And U-10's, which in January were priced $4.50 per lb. higher than 20-30's, are now quoted at only a $1.00 premium.

The same pattern is true for processed scallops as well.

This is all due to a shortage of 20-30 scallops...

Fisheries Minister's Wife's Family Allegedly Had Financial Stake in Winning Arctic Surf Clam Fishery

SEAFOODNEWS.COM [CBC News] by John Paul Tasker - May 10, 2018

The ethics commissioner has rebuffed a request from a Conservative MP to investigate Fisheries Minister Dominic LeBlanc's decision to award a license for the Arctic surf clam fishery to a group with federal Liberal ties.

But Conservatives are now asking Mario Dion to take a second look at the deal — because they say they now have evidence that a member of LeBlanc's wife's family had a financial stake in the winning bid ...

Rep. Keating Says End in Sight for Groundfishing Ban in New Bedford; Reports Are Settlement Reached
SEAFOODNEWS.COM [New Bedford Standard Times] by Michael Bonner - May 10, 2018

Bill Keating sees a finish line in sight to get New Bedford's groundfishing boats back to work.

The Democratic U.S. representative spoke with NOAA's regional administrator Mike Pentony on Wednesday and came away with the belief that the operational plans in Sectors VII and XI would be approved soon, potentially as soon as a few weeks.

"There's great progress now on the road to beginning to fish," Keating said

Start to Alaska Salmon Season Just One Week Away

SEAFOODNEWS.COM [Fish Radio with Laine Welch] - May 10, 2018

This is Fish Radio. I'm Laine Welch - It's nearly salmon time!

The official start of Alaska's salmon season is just one week away with the first 12 hour opener on May 17 at the Copper River near Cordova. The catch there this year calls for 19,000 kings and just under one million sockeye salmon (942,000).

Statewide, Alaska's 2018 salmon harvest is projected at 149 million fish, down 34 percent from last year's take of 226 million ...

Kodiak Fisherman Killed in Accident on Trawler in Bering Sea

SEAFOODNEWS.COM [Anchorage Daily News] by Zaz Hollander - May 10, 2018

A 55-year-old Kodiak man died in a commercial fishing accident at sea last week, authorities said.

Christopher O'Callaghan was working May 2 on the deck of the 95-foot longline trawler F/V Ocean Hunter when a slack line suddenly went taut and struck him in the chest, Alaska State Troopers said. The vessel was tied off to another, transferring fish in the Bering Sea.

Bruising and internal injuries caused O'Callaghan's death ...

Pacific Salmon Foundation Calls For Contained Fish Farms to Protect Wild Salmon

SEAFOODNEWS.COM [The Canadian Press] - May 9, 2018

The foundation created to conserve and rebuild Pacific salmon stocks is calling for a switch from open net-pen aquaculture to closed containment systems in order to protect wild salmon returning to British Columbia waterways.

The Pacific Salmon Foundation says in a news release that open-net salmon farming poses biological risks to the abundance and diversity of already depleted wild Pacific salmon.

In rejecting open-net systems, the foundation says the federal and provincial governments should ...

Florida AG Files Complaint Against Restaurant for Allegedly Deceptive "Locally Sourced" and "Sustainable" Claims

SEAFOODNEWS.COM [JD Supra] by Kelley Drye & Warren LLP - May 10, 2018

Florida attorney general Pam Bondi filed a complaint last week against Icebox Cafe, L.C. alleging that the restaurant violated Florida's Deceptive and Unfair Trade Practices Act by making misleading claims that its food products were "locally-sourced" and "sustainable." The defendant operates a self-proclaimed "farm-to-table" restaurant in Miami Beach, along with select locations at airports.

According to the complaint, Icebox sought to capitalize on the market for locally sourced ...

Four Indian Seafood Companies Line Up IPOs

SEAFOODNEWS.COM [Financial Express] by Rajesh Ravi - May 9, 2018

Four Indian seafood companies are trying to cash in on the booming shrimp exports by going for an IPO. In last few years, Indian seafood exports have been recouping losses suffered due to the punitive tariff imposed by the US in 2004 and the decline in capture fisheries with the help of vannamei shrimp production, which is cheaper than the traditional black tiger.

According to trade sources, Indian aquaculture production is estimated to touch a record ...

Government Crackdown on Food Stamps Raises Alarm for Baltimore Seafood Industry

SEAFOODNEWS.COM [The Baltimore Sun] by Scott Dance - May 10, 2018

Federal regulators have forbidden many Baltimore-area carryout shops from accepting food stamps for steamed crabs, stirring debate over whether such purchases are an appropriate use of government benefits, and if the restrictions could be another blow to Maryland's beleaguered seafood industry.

Officials warned retailers last year that they could continue to accept food stamps for crabs only if they sold them alive or raw (but they could steam the crustaceans for a separate cash fee) ...

Survey Finds Chesapeake Bay Blue Crab Population Healthy and Sustainable

SEAFOODNEWS.COM [WTOP] by Dick Uliano and Teta Alim - May 10, 2018

Despite the seemingly unending winter weather, Maryland found that the population of blue crabs in the Chesapeake Bay are "healthy and sustainable."

According to this year's Blue Crab Winter Dredge Survey from the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, even though around 35 percent of adult female blue crabs didn't make it through the cold, icy weather, there was a marked increase of young crabs returning to the bay this year.

"The population is showing more ...

Fisheries and Oceans Canada Monitoring Cermaq Tofino Fish Farms after Sea Lice Outbreak

SEAFOODNEWS.COM [The Toronto Star] by Tessa Vikander - May 10, 2018

Fisheries and Oceans Canada is looking into whether a fish farm company has been complying with industry rules, and conservationists say they welcome the increased scrutiny.

The news comes after environmentalists and scientists sounded the alarm about a massive sea lice outbreak at several Cermaq fish farms near Tofino, B.C.

"They've been caught red-handed in a very bad situation," said Bonny Glambeck, a campaigner for environmental non-profit Clayoquot Action.

Under DFO regulations, salmon farms must ...

Alaskan Businesses Thrive With State-Water Cod Fisheries

SEAFOODNEWS.COM [Juneau Empire] by Trever Shaishnikoff - May 10, 2018

Fishing vessel crews in Western Alaska wrapped up a successful pot-cod season last month, building upon what's become a mainstay winter fishery for an increasing number of Alaskan boats. Now that pots and gear are stacked and stored, we have time to look ahead at what comes next.

As a young skipper within the under-60-foot pot-cod fleet, I see first-hand the value Pacific cod offers to the state ...

Whole Foods' Plant-Based Sushi Rolls Across U.S.

SEAFOODNEWS.COM [The Produce News] May 10, 2018

Whole Foods Market is expanding its partnership with Ocean Hugger Foods to offer Ahimi, the first-ever plant-based alternative to raw tuna, in select store sushi counters in a total of 40 Whole Foods Market locations in 10 states across the U.S.

Ahimi first launched at Whole Foods Market locations in New York and Los Angeles in November 2017. The product spurred Whole Foods Market's culinary experts to include high-tech, plant-forward foods as a top trend for 2018, and earned Ocean Hugger Foods a Whole Foods Market Supplier Award for Outstanding Innovation last month.

"We know our shoppers come to Whole Foods Market to try new, innovative and trend-forward products, and Ahimi delivers on all three as the original plant-based alternative to raw tuna," said Andy Sasser, global category manager at Whole Foods Market. "We're thrilled to expand our partnership with Ocean Hugger Foods to bring Ahimi to more than 20 additional in-store sushi counters this spring."

Created by Certified Master Chef James Corwell, Ahimi is made using a proprietary process that enhances the ...

High Priced Crabmeat is Leading to Record Prices on Lower Grades, as Buyers Trade Down

SEAFOODNEWS.COM [SeafoodNews] by John Sackton and Angel Rubio - May 9, 2018

Blue swimming crabmeat prices are heading back up near their record highs again, as lack of supply continues to hamper sales.

This has led to a significant trading down reaction, as buyer of Jumbo and Super Lump blue swimming crabmeat have switched to alternatives, including both smaller sizes such as backfin and lump, and also from blue swimming crab to red swimming crab.

As a result, prices of the lower grades of blue crabmeat are ...

Health-Conscious Consumers Keep Norwegian Salmon Price Rally Intact

SEAFOODNEWS.COM [Reuters] by Ole Petter Skonnord and Gwladys Fouche - May 9, 2018

Prices of salmon and other farmed fish are likely to remain high as rising demand from increasingly health-conscious consumers in China and elsewhere outpaces limited growth in supply, Norwegian producers said on Tuesday.

Salmon spot prices have surged from a low point of 51.90 Norwegian crowns ($6.40) per kilo in early January to close to 80 crowns per kilo, their highest level in 16 months.

As well as robust demand, prices have been lifted by ...

Experts Predict Vietnam to Earn $4.8 Billion From Shrimp Exports This Year

SEAFOODNEWS.COM [Vietnam News Brief Service] - May 9, 2018

Experts have predicted that Vietnam would earn $4.8 billion from shrimp exports this year, up 24.67% year/year, mainly thanks to the government's current supporting policies and some positive outlooks in the foreign markets, state media reported.

A representative from Minh Phu Seafood Corp (UPCoM: MPC) said that the government has facilitated firms to open material production centers and seek solutions on supplying raw materials.

The Vietnam Association of Seafood Exporters and Producers (VASEP) added that ...

Clearwater Revenues Down in 1st quarter

SEAFOODNEWS.COM [SeafoodNews] - May 9, 2018

Sales and Earnings for Clearwater were down for the first quarter, the company reported yesterday.

Total sales were $CA 120.1 million vs $CA 128.4 million last year. EBITDA was $19.1 million vs. $19.8 million in the year ago period.

Clearwater will lose 30% of their quota in the clam fishery, as they have seen a Quota cut of 25%, and a modest reduction in the overall harvest TAC.

The company also expects more difficult scallop markets due to market pressure on prices from the increased supplies of US scallops...
