Nick Abboud lists Mosman trophy home

Nick Abboud, the former boss of collapsed electronics retailer Dick Smith, has listed the Mosman home he shares with wife, Lisa.

The property has undergone an extensive renovation since she paid $5 million in 2013, a year after Abboud took the reins prior to the big float.

As Dick Smith's second largest shareholder, Abboud lost a small fortune through the company's collapse.

The Hopetoun Avenue home, overlooking Chinaman's Beach, has four bedrooms, three bathrooms and a solar heated pool.

Raine & Horne Mosman agent Brendan Warner, who sold the home last time round, has the listing with $11 million hopes.

Abboud had reportedly been in the mix to take the vacant CEO job at Myer.

The couple have had two children since their purchase, so are looking for a more suitable family home.

This article first appeared in The Daily Telegraph.
